The Dominicans friars settled in this area in the 13th century and built the pure gothic style church of Florence here. Masaccio, Ghirlandaio, Filippino Lippi and many other artists embellished it with spectacular works of arts. The Dominicans owned all the area around the church where they established a pharmacy, as early as 1612. They grew herbs and prepared medicines, balsams and ointments, they distilled herbs and flowers and made essences which became world wide famous over the centuries. This tradition is still alive today.
